

National Aviation Conference

About the National Aviation Conference

Background, Objectives, and Targeted Stakeholders

BACKGROUND

The National Aviation Conference (NAC) is an initiative of the South African Civil Aviation Authority (SACAA), aimed at providing a shared platform between the Authority and aviation industry. The purpose of the annual NAC event is to share knowledge for mutual enrichment and collaboration to advance safety and security within aviation. It presents an opportunity to proactively engage on matters of interest; seek ways to accelerate transformation; share best practices; encourage voluntary compliance and grow the industry.

The Conference amalgamated three previous independent events hosted by the SACAA. The National Safety Seminar, the National Aviation Security Safety Seminar, and the Aviation Industry Growth Conference were merged into the National Aviation Conference, which debuted in March 2019 and has been held annually since.

The objectives of the NAC

- Provide a platform for the authority, the aviation industry, and the business sector to discuss issues of mutual interest relating to aviation.
- To bring together various role players from the industry with the aim of sharing best practice and learning from each other.
- To provide guidance to the industry and encourage voluntary compliance with industry regulations.
- To serve as a platform to discuss innovative solutions to improving aviation safety and security.
- To highlight SACAA's progress regarding its mandate to regulate civil aviation safety and security in support of the sustainable development of the aviation industry

Targeted Stakeholders

The conference is aimed at Executives, Managers, and Technical experts responsible for Aviation Safety, Security, and Business Development at private, government, and international bodies.
